

What does the McKinney-Vento Act require schools to do for children who have lost housing?

Schools must keep children and youths in the school of origin (the school the child or youth attended when permanently housed or where last enrolled) to the extent feasible, except where contrary to the wishes of the parent or guardian.

Children or youths' right to attend their school of origin extends throughout the duration of homelessness.

Schools must remove any barriers that contribute to exclusion or enrollment delay. This means schools are required to enroll immediately students experiencing homelessness, and then follow up to retrieve missing information, school records, immunization records, etc.

Each school must post the contact information of the District's McKinney-Vento Program (MVP) Liaison.

Each school must post public notice of educational rights of children and youths experiencing homelessness.

Schools must ensure enrollment with full and equal opportunity for students to succeed in school, including participation school district programs, such as: Title I, Exceptional Student Education, Vocational and Technical, Head Start, Early Head Start, Preschool, etc.

Bridging the Gap between Home and School

Every Child Has the Right to an Education

If you lost your housing due to economic hardship, natural disaster, or other similar reason, and are living temporarily with friends or relatives, or in a shelter, motel, vehicle, campground, or on the street, in an abandoned building, then you are eligible to receive services provided under the McKinney-Vento Act.

Your children have the right to:

- Go to their school of origin or zoned school, no matter where they live or how long they have lived there.
- Continue in the school they last attended before they lost their housing, if that is the parent/guardian's choice, and it is feasible and in the child's best interest, or the school for which they are zoned due to their current living situation.
- Enroll in school without giving a permanent address.
- Enroll and attend classes while the school arranges for the transfer of school and immunization records and any other documents required for enrollment.
- Enroll and attend classes in the school where they are seeking enrollment (school of origin or zoned school) even while the school and the parent/guardian are seeking to resolve a dispute over which school is in the best interest of the child or youth.
- Receive transportation to the school they last attended before they lost their housing (if a parent/guardian submits).
- Participate in any school programs and receive any school services for which they qualify.

Questions for Parents to Ask at School

Children can be encouraged by your interest in their day at school, their homework, and the papers they bring from school.

They also benefit when you take time to ask questions about school and visit their school.

Here are some questions for you to ask at your child's school:

- Who is the the District's MVP Liaison for homeless education?
- What transportation is available for my child to stay in the sameschool?
- If we have to change schools, who can help us quickly transfer records?
- Is there a preschool program?
- Is there a summer school program?
- What tutoring services are available for my child?
- If I think my child needs special education services, what do I need to do to get him/her evaluated?
- If my child has a certain talent, are there special classes to benefit that talent?
- What extracurricular activities are offered by this school? How can my child participate?
- How can my child receive free meals at school?
- Where are school supplies available?
- How will my child be able to go on class field trips if we are unable to pay?

Free Lunch and Breakfast Program

Public school children benefit from federal school nutrition programs that provide nutritious meals. Free breakfast and lunch are available to students.

Special Education Services

Florida children between ages 3 and 22, who are eligible for Exceptional Student Education (ESE) Programs, may receive a variety of services provided through the public school system. If a homeless child or youth has an identified disability, he or she may be eligible for special education services.

Parents who believe their child may qualify for special education should request an education evaluation at the child's school. If eligible, the student will then receive special education instruction and related services according to his/her Individual Education Plan (IEP). You may contact either the District's Department of Exceptional Student Education or the Division of Student Services for additional information about programs for ESE students.
